

FAQ for customers of businesses using Stripe

Charges • Declines • Disputes • Payments • Refunds

This page is for customers of businesses that use Stripe.

What is Stripe?

What should I do if I don't recognize a charge from Stripe?

Why is there a $1 charge on my bank statement?

What should I do if the business is having issues processing my payment?

How do I get a refund?

How do I cancel subscriptions from a business using Stripe?

What should I do if I have an issue with a purchase I made?

I don't recognize a charge and I've tried to get in touch with the business. How can I get my money back?

I was a victim of fraud. What should I do?

I disputed a payment. When will I get my money back?

What is Stripe?

Stripe is a payment service provider that millions of businesses use to accept payments, send payouts, and manage their businesses online.

You might see a charge on your bank statement saying "STRIPE". In most cases, you've purchased something from a business that uses Stripe to process their payments and the business name wasn't reflected correctly on your bank statement.

What should I do if I don't recognize a charge from Stripe?

If you notice an unknown charge saying "STRIPE" on your bank statement and you're unsure which business has charged you, you can use our secure charge lookup tool to search for the business.

Why is there a $1 charge on my bank statement?

Customers may sometimes notice a pending charge of $1 on their bank statements as part of the card authorization process. This is a temporary authorization charge that will eventually be removed from the statement.

Stripe sends a request to the customer's bank for a $0, $1, or similar amount to verify the validity of the card and ensure it can be authorized by the bank.

What should I do if the business is having issues processing my payment?

Contact the business you were attempting to make a purchase with. They can investigate the issue and, if necessary, reach out to Stripe for assistance.

How do I get a refund?

Stripe is unable to issue refunds on behalf of businesses.

To initiate a refund, you'll need to contact the business directly. See Privacy Practices for Refunds to End Customer Bank Accounts \(End Customers\) for more information.

How do I cancel subscriptions from a business using Stripe?

Stripe is not authorized to cancel subscriptions on behalf of the businesses using Stripe.

If you have a recurring subscription charge on your bank statement from a business using Stripe that you would like to cancel, you'll need to contact the business directly.

What should I do if I have an issue with a purchase I made?

If you are facing an issue with a purchase, require an update on an order, or have not yet received your item, we suggest reaching out to the business directly to resolve the issue. You can utilize the charge lookup tool to obtain their contact information.

If the business remains unresponsive, we recommend contacting your bank for assistance, as they may offer guidance on how to proceed, including the possibility of initiating a dispute.

I don't recognize a charge and I've tried to get in touch with the business. How can I get my money back?

Stripe is not authorized to issue a refund on behalf of the business. Reach out to your bank for next steps if you are unable to get in touch with the business, they are unresponsive, or you believe the business might be fraudulent.

Your bank may have recommendations for how to proceed, such as opening a dispute.

I was a victim of fraud. What should I do?

If you believe you have been a victim of fraud, report the fraudulent charge to your bank and file a dispute. When you file a dispute, your bank passes all relevant details to Stripe. We use this data in our ongoing effort to combat fraud.

I disputed a payment. When will I get my money back?

When a card issuer creates a dispute on your behalf, the card network immediately debits Stripe for the disputed amount. From that point forward, it's up to the card issuer to decide when they return funds to their cardholder.

Did this answer your question?

Related articles

🔗 Dispute and Fraud in Mexico - FAQ

Most common questions regarding disputes and fraud in Mexico. What are disputes? When a customer has an issue with a credit card charge, they can...

Disputes • Fraud

🔗 Monitoring program FAQ

Get answers to questions about the Visa and Mastercard monitoring programs. Common questions What counts as a dispute for the purpose of monitoring...

Disputes

🔗 Refund privacy practices for customers of businesses using Stripe

This page is for customers of businesses that use Stripe for payment processing. It covers frequently asked questions about charge refunds and privacy...

Refunds

Contact support

Live chat in English

24/7 Support Available

Get email support in English 24/7

Sign up to get support

What is Stripe?

Learn more about Stripe and our products.

Stripe docs

Get familiar with the Stripe products and their features.

API reference

Explore complete reference documentation for the Stripe API.

Developer chat on Discord

Chat live with other developers on the official Stripe Discord.

🗣 English (United States)

Stripe will handle your data pursuant to our privacy policy.

© Stripe